

Reflection Questions: When have I found God's Word hoped on, a covering and strength against sin? Are my thoughts in the dark full of light because of God? Is His name the natural subject of my reflection? Or do I give my mind to the worries and cares of this world? What can I do to remedy this?

How can we pray for one another and our church this week?

Quotes to Ponder

When we see no present display of the divine power it is wise to fall back upon the records of former ages, since they are just as available as if the transactions were of yesterday, seeing the Lord is always the same.

The man whose hope comes from God feels the life-giving power of the Word of the Lord, and he testifies, "This is my comfort."

Charles Spurgeon

The greatest expression of arrogance is the refusal to believe God.

The Word of God studied but forgotten is just as useless as the sword sharpened but sheathed.

Gene Cunningham

When we hear any promise in the Word of God, let us turn it into a prayer.

God's promises are His bonds. Sue Him on His bond. He loves that we should wrestle with Him by His promises.

Richard Sibbes

One word of God, sealed to the heart, infuses more sensible relief, than ten thousand words of man.

No man has any right to the hope of happiness in a world of tribulation, but he who seeks it in the favor of his God. Nor can any enjoy this favor, except as connected, in the exercise of faith, with conformity to the will, and delight in the law, of his God.

Charles Bridges

Anger alone can be very destructive, but anger plus love produces anguish and anguish can lead to constructive action.

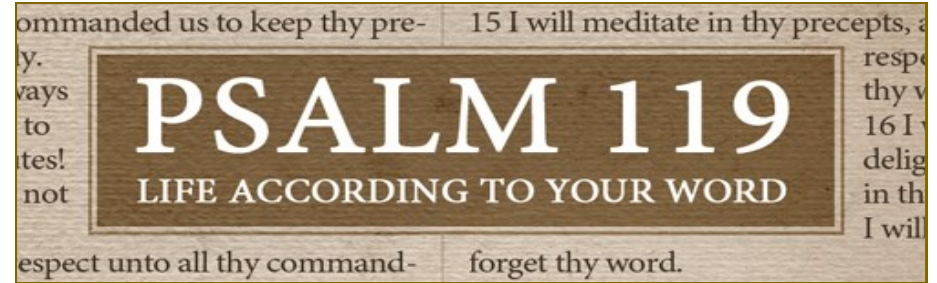

Warren Wiersbe

What is important is not escaping the suffering, even with God's help, but continuing to trust God and prove Him a genuine source of comfort even while we are going through the trial.

James Montgomery Boice

Adversity strengthens hope.
